What is the OMH Transformation Plan?

The Office of Mental Health (OMH) is dedicated to promoting the mental health and wellness of all New Yorkers with a particular focus on facilitating hope, recovery and resiliency for adults with serious mental illness, children with serious emotional disturbances, and their families. In order to achieve this mission in the most integrated setting, an individual's home and community, OMH has embarked on a transformation plan that when completed will yield a spectrum of community based services built on the idea that adults should not live, and children should not grow up, in a state operated psychiatric hospital.
